An EI-Based Theory of Performance

In psychology, trait theory (also called dispositional theory) is an approach to the study of human personality. Trait theorists are primarily interested in the measurement of traits, which can be defined as habitual patterns of behavior, thought, and emotion. According to this perspective, traits are aspects of personality that are relatively stable over time, differ across individuals (e.g ...

Psychological projection is a defence mechanism in which the human ego defends itself against unconscious impulses or qualities (both positive and negative) by denying their existence in themselves while attributing them to others. For example, a person who is habitually rude may constantly accuse other people of being rude. It incorporates blame shifting.

Table 1: The four levels/modes of processing. Figures 3, 4, and 5 show how within the processing model, cognition depends upon context. The effectiveness of the contribution of processing activities at each of these levels / modes, depends on the cognitive requirements posed by the specific context.
