Infants, Toddlers, and Early Childhood Mental Health

The infant mortality rate correlates very strongly with, and is among the best predictors of, state failure. [clarification needed] IMR is therefore also a useful indicator of a country's level of health or development, and is a component of the physical quality of life index. However, the method of calculating IMR often varies widely between countries, and is based on how they define a live ...

x Lack of access to support, services, and providers for children and adolescents with mental health conditions is a serious problem in the United States. Fewer than half of the children who need services obtain them. To meet this demand, the Pediatric Nursing Certification Board launched a new specialty certification in 2011 for advanced practice registered nurses called the pediatric primary ...
